HEALING BRACELETS

Healing Bracelets
with Indigenous totem charms and semi-precious stones. Let the lava rocks diffuse plant medicine from your favourite essential oil while the colourful beads release the guiding energy of the earth.

Wearing essential oils is a healthy alternative to using chemical based perfumes.

Use these bracelets to diffuse your favourite essential oil: simply add a drop to the porous lava stone beads and rub gently until the oil is absorbed.

HEALING BRACELETS

7" - 7.5" bracelet with 8mm beads
 semi-precious stones, stainless steel spacers and pewter charm hypoallergenic, nickel-safe and lead-safe individually presented with a printed backing card describing the stone properties
 please order in multiples of 2 per design

SALISH WEAVING COLLECTION

Leila Stogan is a master Salish weaver from the Musqueam Nation. In 1984, Leila studied traditional Musqueam weaving as part of the revitalization of an almost lost art.

Her weavings are showcased in the Museum of Anthropology at UBC, and in the book, Hands of our Ancestors, The Revival of Salish Weaving at Musqueam.

"Our stories and traditions are woven into our textiles. Thunderbirds represent the power and strength that we all share. These woven designs reflect our ancestral traditions and our connection to nature."
