What Does It Mean to Be Safe?

by Rana DiOrio

Conversations about safety with children used to focus on looking both ways before crossing the street and watching out for “stranger danger.” But in today’s world, there are a number of ways that children need to be aware and selective about their personal safety. From using the Internet to standing up to bullies and knowing when is the right time to get a caring adult’s help, this addition to the award-winning What Does It Mean to Be...? series is the perfect book to educate and foster dialogue between children and adults.

Cookies for Santa

by America's Test Kitchen Kids

Santa thought his favorite cookie recipe was gone forever, but America's Test Kitchen has discovered and perfected it! Are you ready to whip a batch?

Every Christmas, millions of children leave cookies out for Santa Claus. What they don't realize is that many many years ago, Santa's grandma made cookies for Santa, and when we leave cookies for him, we're honoring Santa's family tradition. Although Santa loves every cookie he receives, he sometimes misses the original - his grandma's recipe that was lost long ago.

But one day...a young girl finds the recipe tucked between the pages of one of the ancient cookbooks in the library. Although the coveted recipe has been found, it uses ingredients and methods that only work if you live in the North Pole. But never fear, America's Test Kitchen swoops in to sort things out and broadcast it to the world! Countless families then work together to make dozens and dozens of cookies from the lost recipe in order to leave for Santa- and discover how important working together is.

There Was a Black Hole that Swallowed the Universe

by Chris Ferrie

Spark creative conversations about celestial beings with this clever parody from the #1 science author for kids!

There was a black hole that swallowed the universe.

I don't know why it swallowed the universe-oh well, it couldn't get worse.

There was a black hole that swallowed a galaxy.

It left quite a cavity after swallowing that galaxy.

It swallowed the galaxies that filled universe.

I don't know why it swallowed the universe-oh well, it couldn't get worse.

Using the familiar rhythm of There Was an Old Lady Who Swallowed a Fly, follow along as the black hole swallows up the universe and everything that exists in it, from the biggest to the smallest pieces of matter. The silly, vibrant artwork is sure to make stargazers of all ages smile.

BONUS: Included in the book are instructions to create a craft to turn a cell phone camera light into a black light. Use this new invention to reveal thesecret, invisible text and artwork that reverses the story from nothing to the scientific creation of everything!

Survivors of the Holocaust

True Stories of Six Extraordinary Children

by designed by Ryan Jones, illustrated by Zane Whittingham, edited by Kath Shackleton

Based on a series of BAFTA-nominated animated documentaries, the artwork in Survivors of the Holocaust has been reinvented to bring together six different real-life survivors' accounts of the Holocaust. Every word rings with truth, whether it describes the bleak fear of arriving at Auschwitz or the sheer terror of Kristallnacht, and is complemented by dazzling, clever artwork.

This unique children's graphic novel aims to bring the survivors' stories to a new audience. It is an important, timely reminder of the horrors that can be inflicted on innocent people and a reflection of the Holocaust's legacy today. It won the prestigious School and Library Association Information Books Awards, 2017 in the UK.

At the end of the book, a current photograph of each contributor is shown alongside their cartoon representation with an update about their lives. A glossary and time line are also provided to support the reader and develop their understanding of this period.

The Star Shepherd

by Dan Haring and MarcyKate Connolly

Neil Gaiman meets How to Train Your Dragon in this beautifully illustrated middle-grade novel about a boy, his trusted dog, and his best friend, as they race to save the stars before their light is extinguished for good.

When the world first formed, the night was black and filled with dark creatures. The Elders knew their people couldn't survive under such a threat. So they gave their hearts to the sky in the form of stars to keep evil away.

Now, eleven-year-old Kyro is a Star Shepherd like his father. He's spent his life tucked away in the small town of Drenn. There, the family watches the night sky for falling stars-and rushes to rescue them when they do.

When too many stars start falling at once, and disappearing before they can be saved, Kyro's father journeys to report the threat. But when he doesn't return, Kyro, with the help of his best friend, Andra, and his trusty dog, Cypher, must find a way to save the stars before the dark creatures make a terrifying return.

What If?

What makes you different makes you amazing!
by Sandra Magsamen

If all of us were exactly alike and totally the same,
We'd be boring and dull and that would be a shame.
Everyone is someone special. We are all one of a kind.
Just show the world who you are-let your you-ness shine!
There is beauty and power in what makes each of us unique, and Sandra Magsamen reminds us that it is our differences that allow us to be our one-and-only selves. With a warm, inspiring message, this book will give children courage to embrace their individuality and to accept others for who they are.

My Life with the Walter Boys

by Ali Novak

Moving in with twelve boys was not part of her plan.

Jackie's goal is perfection—perfect grades, the perfect look, getting into the perfect school. If she can achieve that, then maybe her too-busy mom and dad will take notice. But when her parents die in a tragic accident, Jackie is shipped off across the country to live with the Walters, her new guardians. . . who just happen to have twelve sons (well, eleven, but their daughter, Parker, is basically one of the boys).

The Walter boys are loud, dirty, annoying—and, okay, some of the older boys might be Greek god level hot, but they don't think a city girl belongs on their horse ranch. How is Jackie supposed to fit into their chaotic world when she needs to keep her parents' memory alive by living up to the promise of perfect?

But as Jackie spends more time with the Walter boys, she begins to wonder if the perfection she's always strived for isn't the only way to find love after all.

I'm Not Dying with You Tonight

by Gilly Segal and Kimberly Jones

A vital addition to the YA race relations canon."-Nic Stone, New York Times bestselling author of Dear Martin

Lena and Campbell aren't friends.

Lena has her killer style, her awesome boyfriend, and a plan. She knows she's going to make it big. Campbell, on the other hand, is just trying to keep her head down and get through the year at her new school.

When both girls attend the Friday-night football game, what neither expects is for everything to descend into sudden mass chaos. Chaos born from violence and hate.

Chaos that unexpectedly throws them together.

They aren't friends. They hardly understand the other's point of view. But none of that matters when the city is up in flames, and they only have each other to rely on if they're going to survive the night.

We Are Lost and Found

by Helene Dunbar

A poignant, heartbreaking, and uplifting, story in the tradition of The Perks of Being a Wallflower about three friends coming-of-age in the early 1980s as they struggle to forge their own paths in the face of fear of the unknown.

Michael is content to live in the shadow of his best friends, James and Becky. Plus, his brother, Connor, has already been kicked out of the house for being gay and laying low seems to be Michael's only chance at avoiding the same fate.

To pass the time before graduation, Michael hangs out at The Echo where he can dance and forget about his father's angry words, the pressures of school, and the looming threat of AIDS, a disease that everyone is talking about, but no one understands.

Then he meets Gabriel, a boy who actually sees him. A boy who, unlike seemingly everyone else in New York City, is interested in him and not James. And Michael has to decide what he's willing to risk to be himself.

This fall, six new students are joining the junior class at the elite Darkwood Academy. But they aren't your regular over-achieving teens. They're DNA duplicates, and these "similar" are joining the class alongside their originals.

The Similar are all anyone can talk about. Who are they? What are the odds that all of them would be Darkwood students? And who is the madman who broke the law to create them? Emmaline Chance could care less. Her best friend, Oliver, died over the summer and it's all she can do to get through each day without him. Then she comes face-to-heartbreaking-face with Levi, Oliver's exact DNA copy and one of the Similar. Emma wants nothing to do with the Similar, but she keeps getting pulled deeper into their world. She can't escape the dark truths about them or her prestigious school. No one can be trusted, not even the boy she is falling for with Oliver's face.

After the Fire

by Will Hill

The things I've seen are burned into me, like scars that refuse to fade.

Before, she lived inside a fence with her family. After, she's trapped, now in a federal facility.

Before, she was never allowed to leave the property, never allowed to talk to Outsiders, never allowed to speak her mind. After, there are too many people asking questions, wanting to know what happened to her, trying to find out who she really is.

Before, she thought she was being protected from something. After, people are telling her that now she's finally safe.

She isn't sure what's better, before or after, all she knows is that there are questions she can't answer, and if everything she's been told is a lie, how can she know who's telling the truth now?

Praise for After the Fire:

Genuinely different. . . thrilling and spellbinding!"-Patrick Ness, #1 New York Times bestselling author

Trust Me When I Lie

by Benjamin Stevenson

An outstanding debut—confident, compelling, with a surprise around every corner. I loved it." -Jane Harper, New York Times bestselling author of The Dry Producer Jack Quick knows how to frame a story. So says Curtis Wade, the subject of Jack's new true crime docuseries, convicted of a young woman's murder four years prior. In the eyes of Jack's viewers, flimsy evidence and police bias influenced the final verdict. . . even though, off screen, Jack himself has his doubts.

But when the series finale is wildly successful, a retrial sees Curtis walk free. And then another victim turns up dead.

To set things right, Jack goes back to the sleepy vineyard town where it all began, bent on discovering what really happened. Because behind the many stories he tells, the truth is Jack's last chance. He may have sprung a killer from jail, but he's also the one that can send him back.

The Only Woman in the Room

A Novel

by Marie Benedict

The instant New York Times bestseller

She possessed a stunning beauty. She also possessed a stunning mind. Could the world handle both?

Gallows Court

by Martin Edwards

London, 1930

Sooty, sulphurous, and malign: no woman should be out on a night like this. A spate of violent deaths-the details too foul to print-has horrified the capital and the smog-bound streets are deserted. But Rachel Savernake-the enigmatic daughter of a notorious hanging judge-is no ordinary woman. To Scotland Yard's embarrassment, she solved the Chorus Girl Murder, and now she's on the trail of another killer.

Jacob Flint, a young newspaperman temporarily manning The Clarion's crime desk, is looking for the scoop that will make his name. He's certain there is more to the Miss Savernake's amateur sleuthing than meets the eye. He's not the only one.

Flint's pursuit of Rachel Savernake will draw him ever-deeper into a labyrinth of deception and corruption. Murder-by-murder, he'll be swept ever-closer to its dark heart - an ancient place of execution. Twisted family relationships add to a trust-no-one narrative positively reeking with atmosphere.

Extraordinary."-Kirkus STARRED Review for The One You Can't Forget

The highly-anticipated fourth book in Roni Loren's unforgettable The Ones Who Got Away series.

Sassy Kincaid Breslin finally gets her happy ending. . .

Kincaid Breslin was the girl who was supposed to die first in the horror movie. In high school, it had been a running joke among her friends during their annual Halloween marathon of scary movies that she'd be the first character to run, screaming for her life. She was the dance team captain. The girl with the superstar boyfriend. The non-virgin. But when Kincaid's life had turned into an actual horror movie, she'd somehow managed to get out alive. Most of those friends hadn't. Real life horror didn't follow movie rules.

Inspiring Innovation and Creativity in Young Learners

Transforming STEAM Education for Pre-K, Grade 3

by Allison Bemiss

When we imagine young children becoming the innovators of the future, we envision them conducting science experiments to cure diseases, writing the next great novel, or creating a revolutionary digital tool that brings the world together. But how do we help our youngest learners bridge the gap from play-based learning to innovation? This book shares six easy-to-understand, yet powerful, steps that teachers can take to transform the learning experience into one in which critical and creative thinking are encouraged. This text features specific strategies, organizers, thinking starters (or curiosity catchphrases), and STEAM mini-lessons that can be used by teachers and other educational stakeholders to promote innovative thinking in children in Pre-K through grade 3. Topics of innovation addressed in this book include growth mindset, building empathy, making inferences, curiosity, developing meaningful connections with previous learning, self-reflection, and revision.

Curriculum Planning and Instructional Design for Gifted Learners

by Joyce VanTassel-Baska, Ed.D. and Ariel Baska

This book, in its third edition, provides practitioners at local and state levels a guide to designing curriculum for the gifted at any level of learning and in any subject area. It addresses the need to differentiate at all levels in the design process, from goals through assessment, and shows how to customize curriculum for advanced learners. Using national standards, such as the Common Core State Standards and Next Generation Science Standards, as the point of departure for design, the authors demonstrate how the differentiation process works and provide products to illustrate its application to curriculum in math, science, social studies, and English language arts. Special needs gifted learners, such as those who are twice-exceptional, second language learners, students from poverty, and minority students, are included as a group for further differentiation and customization of curriculum and instruction. The book may also be used to provide a curriculum guide for teachers in a master's program in gifted education or those taking endorsement classes.

Differentiating Instruction With Menus: Geometry

by Laurie Westphal

Differentiating Instruction With Menus: Geometry offers teachers everything needed to create a student-centered learning environment based on choice. This book uses different types of menus that students can use to select exciting advanced-level products that they will develop so teachers can assess what has been learned-instead of using a traditional worksheet format. Topics addressed include coordinate and transformational geometry, logical arguments and constructions, congruence, similarity, trigonometry, two- and three-dimensional figures, probability, and proofs. Differentiating Instruction With Menus: Geometry contains attractive reproducible menus, each based on the levels of Bloom's revised taxonomy as well as incorporating different learning styles. These menus can be used to guide students in making decisions as to which products they will develop after studying a major concept or unit.

Yale Needs Women

How the First Group of Girls Rewrote the Rules of an Ivy League Giant
by Anne Gardiner Perkins

b>For readers of Hidden Figures and Rise of the Rocket Girls, Yale Needs Women is the fascinating story of the first class of women admitted to an Ivy League university in 1969

Perkins makes the story of these early and unwitting feminist pioneers come alive against the backdrop of the contemporaneous civil rights and anti-war movements of the 1970s, and offers observations that remain eerily relevant on U.S. campuses today." -Edward B. Fiske, bestselling author of Fiske Guide to Colleges

"If Yale was going to keep its standing as one of the top two or three colleges in the nation, the availability of women was an amenity it could no longer do without."

In the summer of 1969, from big cities to small towns, young women across the country sent in applications to Yale University for the first time. The Ivy League institution dedicated to graduating "one thousand male leaders" each year had finally decided to open its doors to the nation's top female students. The landmark decision was a huge step forward for women's equality in education.

Motherhood So White

A Memoir of Race, Gender, and Parenting in America

by Nefertiti Austin

What's it like to be a black mother in a world where the face of motherhood is overwhelmingly white?

In America, Mother = White

That's what Nefertiti, a single African American woman, discovered when she decided she wanted to adopt a Black baby boy out of the foster care system. Eager to finally join the motherhood ranks, Nefertiti was shocked when people started asking her why she wanted to adopt a crack baby" or said that she would never be able to raise a Black son on her own. She realized that American society saw motherhood through a white lens, and that there would be no easy understanding or acceptance of the kind of family she hoped to build.

Motherhood So White is the story of Nefertiti's fight to create the family she always knew she was meant to have and the story of motherhood that all American families need now. In this unflinching account of her parenting journey, Nefertiti examines the history of adoption in the African American community, faces off against stereotypes of
