You Belong in This World

All young children start wondering at some point about where babies come from—and they may get especially curious about their own origin stories! In this approachable, inclusive book, author Lori Peelen takes the broad view to answering that question, exploring the various ways nature's offspring arrive. No matter the method, each animal baby is a miracle, and everyone belongs.

Lori Peelen's background in special education and speech therapy—along with her experience in homeschooling her own children—fueled her desire to continue educating children through writing books that celebrate the natural world. She lives in California.

Longtime illustration instructor and freelance artist Tom Leonard has illustrated several books, including the 2017 Creative Editions title Under the Sea. He lives in Philadelphia.

Climbing

Twentieth-century poet Amy Lowell was known for her relatively straightforward verse and command of imagery—stylistic strengths that also make her work highly accessible, even to the youngest readers. As the speaker climbs an apple tree, the theme of persisting during a challenge seems clear enough; but then we discover that she is climbing toward a "sparkling" town above, and the scene changes from simple to metaphorical. Paolo Domeniconi's enchanting, reality-bending art is the perfect complement to the scenes described by Lowell, and children will eagerly imagine themselves to be in the protagonist's shoes.

Massachusetts native Amy Lowell (1874–1925) published the first of more than 650 poems at the age of 36. For the rest of her career, she was often more recognized for her advocacy of modern poetry, especially of Imagists such as Ezra Pound and H. D., in her work as an editor and critic.

Paolo Domeniconi lives and works in the small Italian city of Spilamberto. Working mainly in digital media, he has illustrated more than 40 books for international publishers, including such Creative Editions titles as What to Do with a Stick (2023), Afternoon on a Hill (2019), and Taste the Clouds (2016).

A Place in the World

Author Rina Singh met two eight-year-olds in 2018, one from Syria and one from Iraq. Both had been displaced by violence and turmoil in their home countries, and out of their stories came Abdul, the fictional protagonist of this book. As Abdul and his mother endure uncertainty and hardship, waiting for the day when they'll "wake up in a place where there is no rubble, no debris," they hold on to hope against all the odds. Although certainly not every refugee's tale ends as happily as Abdul's, the overarching message that everyone deserves to find a safe place in the world shines through.

Rina Singh is an award-winning Canadian children's book author and spoken word coach. She loves telling stories inspired by real life, such as her previous Creative Editions book, A Meeting in the Sky (2019), as well as those focusing on social justice and environmental issues.

A portrait and figurative artist based in Connecticut, Christopher Pouler was already known for his paintings of refugee children before he was paired with A Place in the World. This is his first book for Creative Editions.

The Great Northern Expedition

In the 1700s, Russia's rulers funded an expedition to Siberia and beyond—to the mysterious North American coastline of what would later become Alaska. Ambitious in scope and incredibly lengthy in time commitment, the Great Northern Expedition was ultimately doomed and largely lost to history. Italian artist Maria Cristina Pritelli reimagines it through the eyes of the young son of Sven Waxell, second-in-command to the famous Danish captain Vitus Bering. Pritelli's cinematic landscapes and attention to both historical and natural detail imbue the fateful voyage with a subtle beauty that makes it easy to consider the appeal such a mission of discovery would have had centuries ago.

Italian artist and author Maria Cristina Pritelli is an internationally recognized children's book illustrator whose recent works for Creative Editions include A Wish Is a Seed, Seaside Lullaby, The Million Stories of Marco Polo, and Sashiko. She lives with her family in Italy.

The Burning of the Books

What happens when a government decides which books are "too dangerous" for its people to read? When it polices not only the creative output of its citizens but also their very thoughts? As author Jonah Winter describes the Nazi book burnings of the 1930s, Gary Kelley's atmospheric paintings communicate a sense of ominous foreboding that lingers past the closing lines:

And what happened in Germany
could happen anywhere.
It could even happen in America.

Jonah Winter is the award-winning author of more than 40 nonfiction picture books that promote environmental awareness and social and racial justice. Among them are Banned Book, Here Comes the Garbage Barge!, Ruth Bader Ginsburg: The Case of R.B.G. vs. Inequality, My Name is James Madison Hemings, Barack, and Lillian's Right to Vote, a Jane Addams Children's Book Award recipient and Kirkus Prize finalist.

Gary Kelley is an award-winning illustrator. His books include Next Year, The Navajo Code Talkers, Harlem Hellfighters, Virginia Was a Spy, and Banned Book, all published by Creative Editions. He lives in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

Starting Out

Now available in a sturdy board book format for little ones, the Starting Out series uses a unique first-person perspective to introduce foundational concepts of growing older. Each book follows an adorable baby animal as it grows up, and the large photos of the subject in its natural environment will entertain and enlighten.

Kate Riggs is a Minnesota-based editor and author of children's and young adult nonfiction books. In 2012, her book Dolphins was honored as the winner of the Maryland Blue Crab Young Reader Award for Transitional Nonfiction.
