Close Up and Far Out: Seeing the World Differently

Two natural philosophers—now known as scientists—used similar tools but saw the world very differently. Antonie van Leeuwenhoek looked close-up at drops of water, while Galileo Galilei looked far out into the universe. What they discovered shook the foundations of human understanding and led to innovations in both microscopes and telescopes. This engagingly graphic treatment of their story will captivate curious minds and inspire future scientists to keep asking questions. After all, we never know what we may find!

It Happened in Salem

“It could happen anywhere, at any time.” The chillingly familiar history of the infamous Salem witch trials is here brought into modern context, showing how bias and blame have worked in tandem throughout history, to disastrous effect. As the townspeople become increasingly fueled by suspicion, the accused become the accusers, naming names to save themselves. Could something like this still occur today? Of course. But it’s up to all of us to stop it.

Motorcycle Queen: The Life of Bessie Stringfield

“On her motorcycle, Bessie felt free.” A woman riding a motorcycle was shocking enough to Americans in the 1930s, but one who performed stunts and traveled cross-country by herself was practically unheard of! Ever defying expectations, Bessie Stringfield made an indelible mark as the “Motorcycle Queen,” but her story has often been overlooked. Revived here by author Janie Havemeyer and illustrator Jean Claverie, Bessie’s daring exploits showcase a woman of grit and determination who met life head on—and astride a motorbike.

History enthusiast and former elementary school teacher Janie Havemeyer gravitates toward writing biographies, “especially stories about strong female protagonists and trailblazers who have been erased in history.” This is her first book for Creative Editions. She lives in the Bay Area.

Jean Claverie is an award-winning French artist whose work has been regularly exhibited in France and abroad for decades. He taught for more than 30 years at the École Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts and the École Emile Cohl, both in Lyon, France. He lives with his wife, artist Michelle Nikly, near Lyon.

Together

In a world where people are too often divided by perceived differences, it can be easy to forget all the commonalities we share. This gentle yet insistent call to action reminds us that we are stronger together, that collective action is the most powerful response we can have, no matter how insurmountable the challenges seem: “Together, the entire world changes, and something new is born.”

A Fine Little Bad Boy:
Quentin Roosevelt in the White House

Quentin may be the “littlest Roosevelt,” but he soon rivals his father, the famous Teddy, as the biggest personality in the White House of the early 1900s. From roller skating in the halls to shooting spitballs, and from swimming in the fountains to taking a pony for an elevator ride, this “fine little bad boy” takes full advantage of his father’s long tenure as president, believing the good times will never end. When he learns the sad truth that the Roosevelts will have to move out, his spirits aren’t dampened for long; he still has his father, and the two of them can be fine little bad boys together!

Banned Book
Creative Editions New in Paperback

"The words were dangerous." For as long as people have been expressing their opinions in writing, there have been those in positions of power who have succeeded in censoring those thoughts. In this timely and provocative parable, a book is first subjected to redaction, then removal from a library. What becomes of a banned book? Is it really just landfill fodder in the end? Readers must decide for themselves.

Chasing the Sun
Creative Editions New in Paperback

An Arctic tern can fly as many as 50,000 miles in its annual migration, and as this bird chases summer across the hemispheres, it sees more sunlight than any other living thing. In this luminous celebration of such astonishing aerial feats, author and visual artist Timothy Musso charts the migratory path of an Arctic tern family with intricately designed woodcut illustrations that propel the reader along as a partner on a most incredible journey. Back matter expands on the poetic text with additional details about the Arctic tern and other animals. Thumb through the top right corner of the pages to see a flipbook animation of the Arctic tern.
