2019
CATALOGUE

ABOUT US

We are honoured to do our part in celebrating First Nations and Native American arts and cultures.

We have always worked exclusively with Indigenous artists. Artists are paid in fees and royalties for their art.

We bring authentic art to everyday living through a diverse selection of gifts, fashion, and learning tools.

THE NATIVE NORTHWEST STORY

Native Northwest's story began over 35 years ago with a social worker, a rack of postcards in a basement, and the vision of celebrating First Nations and Native American arts with the world.

We are inspired by the living cultures of the Pacific Northwest and across North America. Our company office is situated on the majestic Fraser River within Musqueam (Coast Salish) territory in Vancouver, B.C.

The values behind our brand originate with the founding reason for the company: Native arts and cultures, designed by Indigenous artists, propelled by commerce for a social purpose.

Each of our exchanges, from the sourcing and compensation of Indigenous artists, to our staff and merchants, is part of a lifelong relationship between Indigenous cultures and the communities we pledge to honour and respect.

Our evolution to a social and business enterprise is ongoing. We thank you for joining us in the journey that lies ahead.

COMMUNITY PARTNERSHIP

It's about people...

Over the last year, we were honoured to partner with more than 60 organizations that support Indigenous peoples and communities.

Here are a few initiatives that drive our community involvement:

Youth and Education

Our mission is to integrate more Indigenous arts, cultures, and history into curriculum.

Proceeds from Native Explore learning tools provide thousands of books to Indigenous children.

We support anti-bullying awareness and safe spaces through the production of our Pink Shirt Day t-shirts.

Community Health and Conversation

We believe in starting conversations and encouraging people to open up to those around them as a means of making change.

To support a path to well-being and suicide prevention, we created The Journey of Hope posters, given free of charge to over 2,500 community spaces.

We support Orange Shirt Day through the design and sale of orange t-shirts. Funds from these sales go to survivors, the promotion of awareness, and education on the impact of the Residential School System.

Women and Families

A portion of proceeds from our Sacred Shawl collection has been directed to carefully chosen women's organizations that protect, bring healing, and build awareness to end violence against women.

Join us!

Native Northwest wants to know how we can expand our support to Indigenous initiatives in your community.

Please contact us at community@nativenorthwest.com with partnership opportunities near you.

We thank the many non-profit organizations with whom we work for and the positive impact they have in their communities. Here are a few:

MEET THE ARTISTS

Native Northwest collaborates exclusively with First Nations and Native American artists. We are thankful for the long-term relationships with our artists and their families. Artist names and their tribal affiliations are featured on all of our packaging. Meet a few of the artists:

"Our stories and traditions are woven into our textiles. These woven designs reflect our ancestral traditions and our connection to nature."

Leila Stogan
Musqueam, Coast Salish

"Our art retells our ancestors' stories about our connection to the land that we have respectfully lived on for thousands of years."

Francis Horne Sr.
Coast Salish

"Art is my language and an expression of who I am and where I come from. Sharing my culture helps to honour and preserve it."

Ben Houstie
Bella Bella

"Art is central in our traditions and expresses who we are as a people. I am honoured to be an artist and share our culture with the world."

Ernest Swanson
Haida

"Art is an intimate connection to our history, identity and our community. I am honoured to continue our traditions and to share them."

Morgan Asoyuf
Tsimshian

"I am delighted to share my art which will hopefully touch people in a positive way and add to their day."

Nicole La Rock
Coast Salish

MEET THE ARTISTS

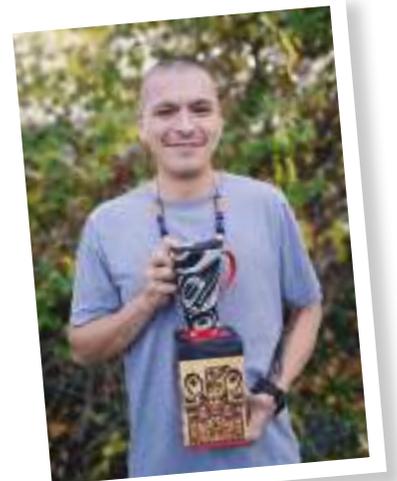

"I was raised in a way of life based on hunting, fishing, feasting, singing, dancing and visual arts. Art has always been communicated as an expression of spirit to the connections to people and the ways of life."

Paul Windsor
Haisla, Heiltsuk

"My art tells women's stories, showcasing the beauty and creativity of life."

Sharifah Marsden
Anishinaabe

"I am honoured to share my culture and appreciate when people show their respect by using products that feature my designs."

Allan Weir
Haida

"I create art that connects me to my family, our traditions and our spirit of continuity."

Simone Diamond
Coast Salish

"Art, motherhood, and our family connection to autism are the essence of my life."

Justien Senoa Wood
Northern Tutchone, Dene

"I am honoured to create art that respects the traditions of my ancestors from the Naikun Raven clan on Haida Gwaii."

Corey Bulpitt

EAGLE CREST

by Ben Houstie,
Bella Bella

"In our traditions, eagles provide a vision and a path."

Ben Houstie is a renowned Indigenous artist from Canada who has dedicated his life to the art of his ancestors and the people of Bella Bella.

Ben is a Residential School survivor whose art expresses his strength, resilience and dedication to the continuity of his tradition.

*"Art is my language, and an expression of who I am and where I come from.
Sharing my culture helps to honour and preserve it."

"My artistic life started at a young age. I began with painting, and I also loved to create floral and geometric beadwork designs on traditional pow wow regalia. One of the earliest teachings from my mother was to continue creating images that relate to my culture, in order to maintain my connection to my Anishinaabe heritage, and for my identity to endure throughout formal training.

My art tells women's stories, showcasing the beauty and creativity of life."

HEALING BRACELETS

Healing Bracelets
with Indigenous totem charms and semi-precious stones. Let the lava rocks diffuse plant medicine from your favourite essential oil while the colourful beads release the guiding energy of the earth.

Wearing essential oils is a healthy alternative to using chemical based perfumes.

Use these bracelets to diffuse your favourite essential oil: simply add a drop to the porous lava stone beads and rub gently until the oil is absorbed.

7" - 7.5" bracelet with 8mm beads
 semi-precious stones, stainless steel spacers and pewter charm hypoallergenic, nickel-safe and lead-safe individually presented with a printed backing card describing the stone properties
 please order in multiples of 2 per design

EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES

We think that every classroom, library and
home should be a place
of culturally connected learning.

Native Explore offers culturally connected learning tools for all people to learn about the Indigenous cultures of the Pacific Northwest.

Our First Nations and Native American educational resources are being integrated into classrooms and early childhood development programs.

We are committed to promoting literacy, and have donated thousands of books to Indigenous children through our program, A Book in Every Home.

COLOURING JOURNALS

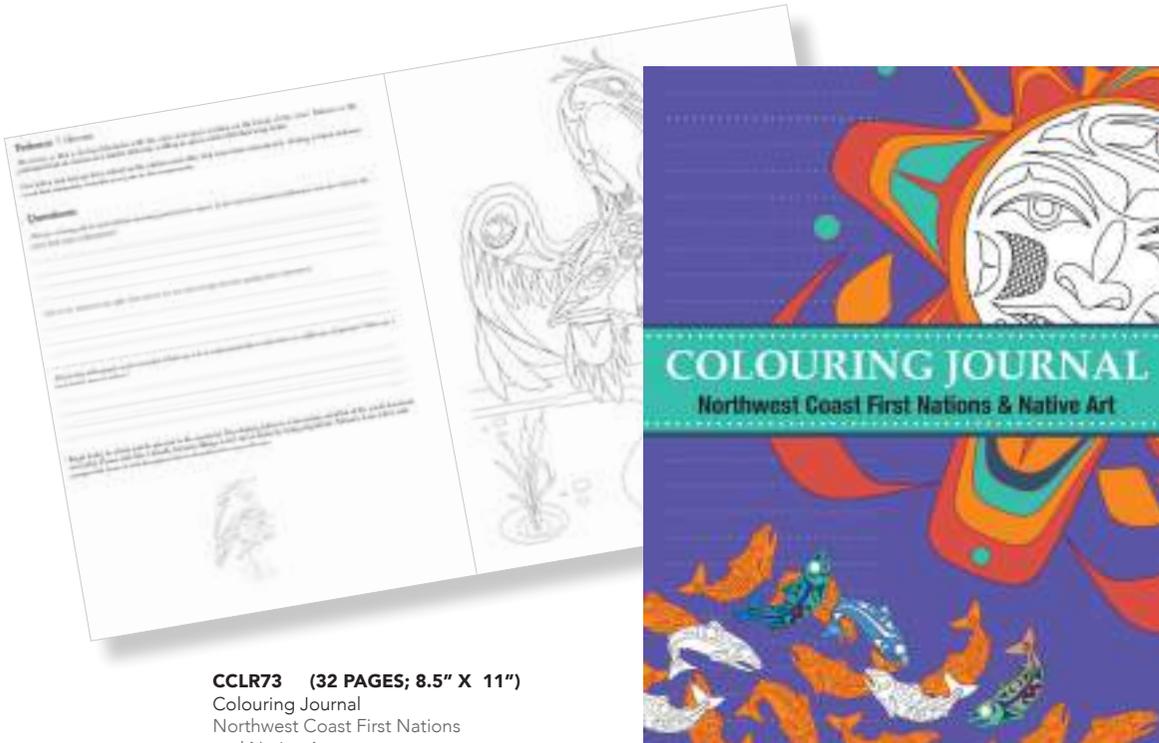

soy-based ink and non-toxic coatings
premium paper perfect for colouring

Explore this Northwest Coast First Nations and Native Art colouring journal for adults and young adults. This book features 15 First Nations and Native artists. Slow down and discover your creativity, and reflect on the opportunities for personal transformation.

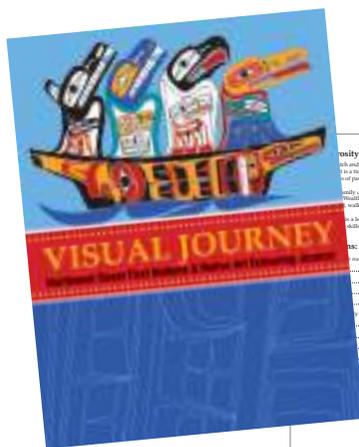

Nurture your Spirit while learning about the Indigenous peoples of the Pacific Northwest. Find your own magical journey woven within these pages.

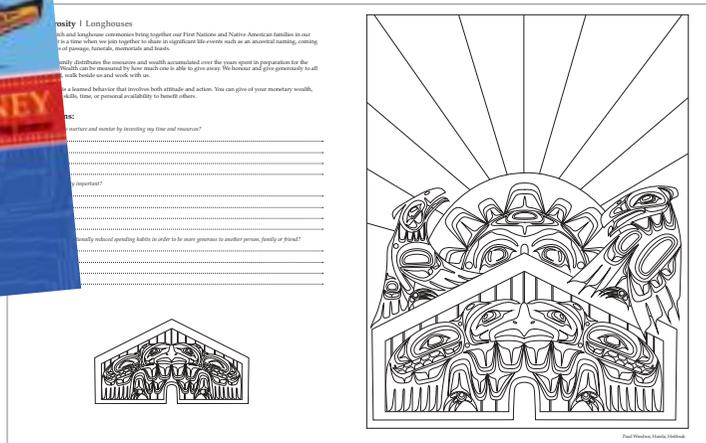

Author Melaney Gleeson-Lyall, Musqueam, Coast Salish, proudly showcasing her new colouring books

COLOURING BOOKS

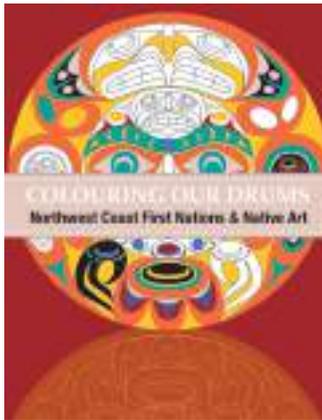

soy-based ink and non-toxic coatings
premium paper perfect for colouring

Colour and draw the animals of the Pacific Northwest Coast. This book features 44 First Nations and Native American artists.

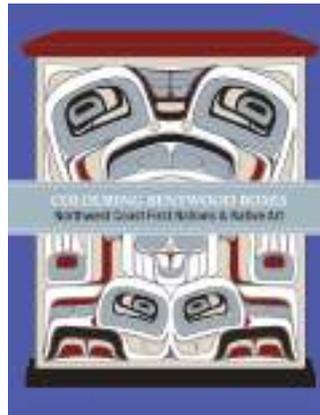

Each artist uses their own style of authentic Northwest Coast formline to create various interpretations of the animals presented on each page. Colour and create your own designs on the blank pages provided.
